

Now What?

Ages 8 and up | $20 | Patch

In each round of this clever story-telling game, players are presented with a problem (how would you warn others of danger when you have laryngitis, how might you capture Big Foot) and asked the title question, Now what? Then all the players have to create answers that involve three objects pictured on the game cards. For example, one 11-year-old tester said he would warn people of danger by donning a cheese hat and throwing corn dogs to get their attention, then tapping out a Morse code message with false teeth. If your imaginative answer uses an object that no one else chose for his story, you get that card. The first to collect 10 cards wins. Three to eight players.

